

Reading asks $12.2m for buyout, predicts $52m Wilmington debt

Reading Light on Tuesday made public its reply to Wilmington's buyout offer, and as expected, the two town's positions are miles apart.

Reading's figures were in a three-option presentation. Option 1 was if Wilmington stayed in the Reading system, Option 2 was if Wilmington bought its power wholesale from Reading, The third was if Wilmington bought its power from other sources.

Under option three, if Wilmington were to leave Reading Light and then buy its power elsewhere, Reading predicts that the capital outlay for Wilmington would be $52 million. This would include $12,200,000 for Reading's plant, plus $26,400,000 in damages. Add to this an estimated set up cost of $13,400,000 for additional plant needed to start up an independent Wilmington system.

Reading's consultants also predicted that Option 3 would result in a 54 percent rate increase for Wilmington consumers.

Bob Cain, chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, replied that if he were on the Reading Light board, he would encourage Wilmington to leave the system. Of the figures, he said, "It is appropriate for it to be around Halloween time, because you're throwing up some ghost numbers."

Last month, Wilmington offered Reading $4,669,000 for its plant in Wilmington and equipment in Reading necessary to service Wilmington. Reading had criticized this offer as being too vague.

At its press conference, Reading was represented by RMLD Chairman Allan Ames, Attorney Kenneth Barna, and two consultants, Bob Taylor of R.W. Beck Associates and Richard LaCapra, a rate expert.

Ames said that so far, Reading has spent $170,000 on the case between the two towns.

He urged a reconciliation between Wilmington and RMLD, saying that if the present separation process continues, everyone will be hurt.

"I'm optimistic that once everyone knows all the facts, we can make substantial progress," he said.

The figures being presented, Ames said, were developed by independent consultants who cannot compromise their reputations to provide Reading with a bargaining position.

Attorney Barna reviewed figures contained in a ten-page handout. The DPU, he said, would look to fair value of the system, plus damages and costs that the system must pay.

If Wilmington were to stay with Reading Light, the cost per kilowatt hour to the consumer would be 6.8 cents. If Wilmington started its own system and bought power wholesale from Reading, he said, the cost would be eight cents. If Wilmington bought power from other sources, the cost would be 10.4 cents.

Consultant Bob Taylor spoke briefly, reviewing what his firm had done for Reading. Reading had asked R.W. Beck Associates to determine the value of properties to be used by Wilmington, and that would not be used by Reading if Wilmington broke away.

"We feel these are very support-

Grove Avenue fire

Dennis Hewitt (center of picture) arrived home on Friday night to find his Grove Avenue home burned out. Everyone in the Hewitt family escaped injury, but a neighbor fell as he crossed the street. Daniel Bemis, 84, was concerned that everyone was safely out of the house.

Neighbor hurt in fall as fire guts Grove Avenue home

An 84-year-old Wilmington man was injured on Friday night in an attempt to help neighbors whose house was afire.

Daniel H. Bemis of 133 Grove Ave. tripped on the pavement as he started across the street. He broke his nose and cracked a knee-cap in the fall.

Bemis had just settled down for the evening when he spotted the fire across the street.

The home of the Dennis Hewitt family caught fire about 7:30 p.m. Mr. Hewitt had put a couple of logs on the fire in the fireplace as he left for work at the Tewksbury Hospital. When smoke from the fireplace began to gather in the house, Dennis Hewitt, Jr. opened the door. The fire blazed up and caught onto nearby papers.

Dennis ran next door to his grandparents, who called the fire department.

Mr. Bemis saw Dennis outside the house, but did not see his two younger sisters. He had just started across the street when he fell.

The Wilmington Fire Department ambulance took Mr. Bemis to the Choate Memorial Hospital. He was released on Sunday with a removable cast.

The Hewitts' home was heavily damaged in the fire. They are now living next door with relatives.

If Wilmington forms its own Public Utility what will it mean to Wilmington... both its residents and its industry?

Three options Reading Light presented this graph as part of the figures it released on Tuesday. The figures were prepared by consultants working for the RMLD.

Reading officials invited but not on agenda

Officials from the Reading Municipal Light Board (RMLB) may visit the Wilmington Town Hall on Monday night, but it is questionable how much discussion will take place between them and the Wilmington selectmen.

Selectman Michael McCoy attended the RMLB meeting Monday night in Reading, and invited the board to the Wilmington selectmen's meeting.

On Tuesday, the RMLB held a press conference, and one of those in attendance was Bob Cain, chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. He had not been invited, but had learned of the conference.

On Tuesday night, Cain told the Town Crier that the RMLB would not be on the agenda for Monday night's meeting. The Reading board had already issued its figures to the press, he said, but there were still members of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen who had not seen them. He felt that his board needed time to review the figures before discussing them with the Reading officials.

Reps. Miceli and Cox lead house debate on 774

by Arlene Surprenant
In a lengthy session before the Joint Housing Committee on Beacon Hill last Wednesday, Rep. James Miceli and Rep. John Cox of Lowell led debate on bills they sponsored to suspend Chapter 774 for two years and one year, respectively. Both men sought to place a moratorium on new 774 projects until a study committee had a chance to review ways to amend the 18-year-old affordable housing law.

According to Miceli, while all legislators favored the formation of a study panel, they balked at shelving the law. Instead, action on the bills was delayed until November 20. At that time, if 81 members are in favor of the proposed moratorium, said Miceli, the issue could be brought up on the house floor.

Miceli told the Town Crier while he didn't oppose the study committee, he felt towns are very vulnerable unless brakes are applied now to incoming 774 proposals. Miceli has suggested an amendment to require the committee to report its findings in March rather than May. This, he said, would allow "more than enough time" to review the law expeditiously. The committee, he added, would be comprised of legislators, housing experts, and members of the public at large.

One positive step which came out of Wednesday's hearing was a set of guidelines proposed by EOC Secretary Amy Anthony. The new guidelines will do the following:

--Suspend applications for new projects proposed under the Homeownership Opportunity Program for six months.

--Force developers to refrain from using alleged scare tactics with local officials.

--Require state housing agencies to notify local selectmen when a developer approaches them with a project.

--Force the state to review proposed sites more closely, even before plans are brought before local boards.

According to Miceli, Anthony said her department would give proposals a "solid onceover" after the six month period and EOC, in the future, would favor projects which have community support.

During the hearing, representatives of the Homebuilders Association, the League of Women Voters, and legislators, including Senate Chairman Frederick Berry of Peabody, spoke against the moratorium proposals. Miceli said he wasn't surprised by the opposition as some legislators "legitimately and philosophically" support 774. The ones who don't, he added, live in communities most negatively impacted by the law.

During the session, Miceli tried to diffuse the law's snob zoning tag saying neither Wilmington nor Tewksbury are pricey communities like Wellesley or Brookline with expensive estate-like homes. He invited legislators to visit the two towns and see for themselves.

Miceli said the hearing left him feeling "optimistic." He told the Town Crier the two bills did succeed in highlighting the inequities of the 774 law and in pressuring the state to take some action.

"I'm not anti-development," Miceli said, adding, however, he has consistently spoken out against high density projects proposed for neighborhoods which could not handle their impact.

"It all comes down to density for me. I don't want to see these massive projects being jammed down our throats. I can't believe there are banks who would go on funding (such projects as) 400 condos," he said, explaining that right now Wilmington should be focusing on ways to deal with the Arboretum Apartments project off Arlene Avenue.

Miceli also issued a warning. "A danger I see is that in our stampede to accommodate the (774) law, I don't want to see us coned into putting developments together which weren't good before and aren't good now," Miceli added the town shouldn't be forced into accepting "garbage" and into relaxing its zoning bylaws.

This is a view shared by Dan Gillis of the Wilmington Housing Authority. Gillis and fellow member Bill Strob accompanied Miceli to last week's hearing.

Gillis praised Miceli's efforts and eloquence before the joint committee. He also extended an invitation to young couples and singles in town to attend a meeting of his board to share their views on affordable housing.

"We have neglected to bring the young people into the picture," said Gillis, explaining it's the newly marrieds and young professionals who seem equally in need of housing today.

Assistant Supt. pleased with follow up on bad test scores

by Arlene Surprenant
Referencing state mandated basic skills tests, Assistant Supt. Henry Dembowski said last Wednesday he was "delighted" with follow up measures taken to help Wilmington students who experienced difficulty with the tests.

In the intermediate schools, anyone who fell below 65 in either writing, math, or reading is now required to take small class instruction in the subject five periods a week. The students will also take the test each year until they pass.

In grades three, four, and five, reading failures are being picked up by reading teachers and math failures are being helped by homeroom teachers. Dembowski told the school committee last week he is working to improve math scores by having teachers concentrate on speed and accuracy and doing more graph and chart work in the early grades.

Wilmington is currently using a computer service from Connecticut to help administrators study specific problems and show how to improve basic skills test scores. The computer will provide a file on all students and track them with longitudinal data from grades three to twelve.

In other business at the meeting, committeemen learned there are 189 computers in the Wilmington system to date. This year, grades four through eight are getting systematic computer instruction in five functional computer labs.

Dembowski said as more teachers become proficient in the use of computers, they are asking for them in their classrooms. He added there may be a need to hire a second elementary computer instructor in the near future.

CAN YOU DEDUCT MEDICAL BILLS?

The new tax law has raised the floor under your medical-expense deductions: only those expenses in excess of 7-1/2 percent of adjusted gross income can be written off. Barring catastrophe, it's unlikely that you will have such high expenses in one year. But what you can try to do in order to qualify for medical-expense deductions is to plan medical spending.

For instance, if your hospital and doctor bills were high this year, consider having the elective surgery or dental work you've been putting off done now. Pay all medical bills before the end of the year. If you don't have the cash, use a credit card; expenses are deductible when you sign for them, not when you pay the bill. Conversely, if expenses have been low or income is expected to drop, put off until the new year the procedures that can wait.

It may pay to file separately from your spouse if one of you has heavy medical expenses that exceed 7-1/2 percent of that person's income.

Cat cage

Firefighters investigate a cage in the back yard of a home on Hathaway Road. Inside the cage were five cats. On Monday evening, a fire in the house injured the occupant. Subsequently, more than 20 cats were found on the property. At right is animal control officer Ellen Davis.

Fire reveals house full of cats

When Wilmington firefighters responded to a house fire on Hathaway Road shortly before 8 p.m. Monday, they were quite surprised at what they found.

The house was strewn with litter and occupied by an unknown number of cats. There were cats in cages in the basement, cats running loose in the house, cats in cages in the yard. There were at least six dead cats, one in an advanced state of decay. In the bathtub, there was a considerable amount of cat litter.

The fire in the house was confined to the kitchen and one other room. The occupant, Barbara Morgan, suffered some burns and was taken to Winchester Hospital.

Fire Chief Dan Wandell said that the cause of the fire was believed to be a toaster which set fire to nearby material.

Animal control officer Ellen Davis was summoned. She was able to round up 11 cats, which were taken to a veterinary hospital. Three or four other cats were seen, but could not be caught.

Davis returned to the house on Tuesday morning, and found another five cats in a cage in the back yard.

Not having any facilities to care for cats, Davis summoned the Animal Rescue League (ARL). It was determined that some of the cats had a highly contagious upper respiratory infection. The cats were all turned over to the ARL.

Public health officer Greg Erickson went to the house on Tuesday morning. He posted it as condemned, to discourage anyone from entering. He said that while the posting does not signify formal condemnation, he has yet to decide the course of action that the town will pursue in regard to the house. In the meantime, it has been boarded up.

New grading system for North Intermediate

by Arlene Surprenant

Students in Wilmington's intermediate schools will soon be graded with an alpha letter system rather than numerically. According to school officials, this will bring both the West and North Intermediate Schools into conformity with the rest of the system.

Along with the grading system, a new multilayer honor roll system at the junior high level was subject to debate at last Wednesday's school committee meeting.

Under the new system, said Supt. Robert Horan, students would be required to get A's and B's in all subjects to make high honor roll. Honor roll students would be allowed one C in a specialty or elective area while honorable mention candidates could receive two C's.

Discussion centered on the high honor roll. Both James Demos and Bridget Zukas said they had problems with the stringent requirement. They claimed students shouldn't be penalized if they are not proficient in a minor subject like music or shop.

James Jordan, principal at the West, explained administrators are just trying to prevent top students from signing up for an elective then not making an honest effort in class.

Assistant Supt. Henry Dembowski agreed. He said most students could get at least a B if they just attend classes, do the work, and try their best.

Committee members were dubious. It was decided to table approval of the new system until several specialty teachers come in to explain their grading practices.

Doctor calls AIDS preventable

by Arlene Surprenant

Though he likened AIDS to a plague that has reached epidemic proportions, Dr. Peter Spitzer Tuesday night viewed AIDS as, above all, a preventable disease.

Dr. Spitzer is a doctor of internal medicine at Lahey Clinic. He told an attentive audience at the North Intermediate School that Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome breaks down the body's immune system, leaving it vulnerable to a variety of unusual, life-threatening illnesses. The most common diseases found in AIDS victims are pneumocystis carinii pneumonia and Kaposi's sarcoma, a form of skin cancer.

Since there is no known cure or vaccine for AIDS, Dr. Spitzer said, the only way to slow the epidemic is through education and prevention. To this end, Dr. Spitzer accepted an invitation from the Wilmington Board of Health and the Wilmington School Department to speak on the deadly disease.

With the help of carefully prepared slides, Dr. Spitzer discussed the background of AIDS and outlined several startling statistics. He explained, for example, AIDS was first reported in California in 1981 and, since that time, there have been over 42,000 cases reported in the United States. Approximately two percent of those cases are in Massachusetts, while the majority have been found in California, Texas, Florida, New York, and New Jersey.

By the year 1991, said Dr. Spitzer, medical experts expect there will be over a quarter million cumulative cases and at least nine times as many patients alive as there are today.

Though one and a half million U.S. citizens have the AIDS virus in their bodies, Dr. Spitzer went on, most of them fall in the asymptomatic category. These people have the virus and the potential to transmit it to others but they themselves are unaware of the danger and feel fine. This category is part of the reason why the disease is so difficult to contain, he said. The rest of those having AIDS either have classic AIDS cases or ARC, AIDS-Related Complex, whose symptoms are similar to AIDS.

Dr. Spitzer stressed that AIDS cannot be contracted through casual contact. The disease is mostly transmitted through blood or sexual discharges, he said. Because of this he urged caution, saying open wounds should be covered if there's a danger of contamination; latex condoms should be used for protection; women of childbearing age and those suspecting contamination should be tested; and people should avoid sharing contaminated needles and syringes.

Though there is a very low risk to health care workers, the audience learned that the use of such disinfectants as hydrogen peroxide, lysol, and household bleach in hospitals and homes inactivates the AIDS virus. Bleach alone kills the virus in less than a minute, Dr. Spitzer said. Because of the possibility of transmitting the disease through blood transfusions, it was pointed out blood donations have been screened since 1985 and the blood supply is considered safe.

In closing, Dr. Spitzer warned that anyone who suspects he might have AIDS should avoid giving blood, limit his sexual exposure, and have a test done as soon as possible.

In Wilmington, blood tests are available through the Regional Health Center for $35, according to Health Director Greg Erickson. Residents may also contact the AIDS Action Committee (437-6200) or the Massachusetts Dept. of Public Health (522-4090) for further information and help.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

The Reading Municipal Light case seems to get more and more interesting every day. The most recent development is a definite difference of opinion between one member of the board of selectmen and his 'colleagues'.

First, we put quotes around that word above because Michael McCoy and the other selectmen aren't exactly what you would call comrades in arms. I mean let's just come right out and say it. They hate him because he won't give carte blanche support to the town manager, and he hates them because they don't take him seriously - yet.

In this latest episode, Michael McCoy is jumping into a real serious issue; whether or not Wilmington should separate from the Reading Municipal Light Department. On the heels of a $4.7 million offer to buy our way out, McCoy has suggested that the time may have come to go to the bargaining table with the folks in Reading. Attending a meeting with R.M.L.D. Monday evening, McCoy called for the selectmen and the light company to "actively start the communications to solve this problem."

After this, chances are there is no one more irritated at McCoy's latest maverick move than the other selectmen and the town manager. Also, you can probably add to the irritated list every member of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, which has been pushing for separation from Reading Light as if it's the only true way to salvation.

Having moved on from the emotionalism which seemed to be the chief factor in getting people to support severing ties with Reading, some people along with McCoy are beginning to ask serious questions regarding the consequences of an independent power company for Wilmington.

Not many disagree that R.M.L.D. is wrong in refusing Wilmington a vote on its board of directors. There is nothing more un-American than denying a group of people their right to be represented where their monies are being spent.

But now, the questions are trickling in about financing. The roughly $4 million recently offered to Reading by Wilmington was almost amusing. The total bill for buying out Reading is better estimated in the tens of millions. Add to this projected rate increases which Reading estimates anywhere from 18% to 54%, and the prospects of separation could begin to look a little less attractive.

There is something odd at Wilmington High School. It's not academic, and there is certainly nothing wrong with the dedicated professionals who educate our kids there. What is wrong has to do with one of those little details in life, that we sometimes don't spend much time thinking about. But this detail really does matter.

A few people seemed to notice it at the last special town meeting held at the new gymnasium. As you enter that part of Wilmington High you'll notice your regular, run of the mill dedication plaque, embedded in the wall. So far so good. The plaque brings your attention to the myriad of officials who played a big part in making the dream of a high school renovation project a reality.

Listed on the plaque are the members of the Permanent Building Committee (PBC), and State Representative Jim Miceli. These people should be listed. They worked hard, and served the people of the town well. But unfortunately, that is where the list ends. The plaque makes no mention what so ever of the members of the school committee.

The school committee had tried to be included in the plaque when it was commissioned by the PBC. Though unsuccessful in this effort, the school committee would seem to be a logical group to include on a plaque which recognizes improved educational facilities.

So now, it can only seem odd that the same people who had to make the policies which kept kids educated while the renovation project was going on, would not be modestly recognized in something so basic as a plaque.

Hand-car crew

What? You never heard of the Wilmington Railroad? Well, that's good, because there really isn't any such animal. But a few local men have some fun with a hand-car they built for use in various parades. Recently four of them entered the hand-car in the Woburn Horribles Parade. In front is Willie Whalen. On the hand-car are Ed Whalen, Jeff Coville and Jack Betts.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

On Friday night my family and I were burned out of our home on Grove Avenue.

Thanks to the quickness of response on the part of the fire department there was much less loss than we could have had. The compassion and care that was shown by Walter Sowyrda and the other men who worked to save our home made our shock and grief a lot easier to deal with.

In the eyes of my family the town is very lucky to have men such as these.

My 14-year-old son who had been watching television at the time the fire broke out and was in shock when the fire department arrived was treated with gentleness and consideration when questioned. As a result he will suffer less emotional trauma.

We may have lost our home and most of our belongings but we have the best of all our belongings, ourselves.

I want to add this note to all parents that unfortunately I had to find this out the hard way. I can't stress the importance of having a fire plan in the home. From the time we moved in to the house we have tried to teach each of our children what to do in the event of fire. My son got out of the house and went next door (his grandfather's) and called the fire department who were there in five minutes. He did not try to put the fire out but immediately called for help.

The damage to the house was not as bad, but more important is the fact that my son is still alive. Even though all of us were concerned for our pets who were in the house, none of us tried to go in and save them. As it turned out, we didn't have to because they all found hiding places and were unharmed.

My wife, three children and my inlaws (The Barrys) as well as myself wish to thank everyone, neighbors, friends and family who had offered their help in the first crucial hours, for without their support we would not be able to cope as well as we are.

Thank you all,
The Hewitts and the Barrys

A child's view of retirement

After a summer vacation the teacher asked her small pupils how they spent their holidays. One small boy's reply went like this: "We always spend our vacation with Grandpa and Grandma. They used to live up here in a big brick house, but Grandpa got retarded and they moved to Florida."

"They live in a place, with a lot of retarded people in cement houses where they say 'cat walk' outside their door. They go to a big building they call the wrecked hall. But if it was wrecked, it is all fixed up now."

"They ride big three wheel tricycles and play games and do exercises - but not very good. There is a swimming pool and they go in and just stand there in the water with their hats on and talk about their doctors and their pressures and their children and '2-fers' - My grandma used to bake cookies, and make lots of chicken soup. Now we eat 'Almost Home' and our chicken soup comes from a Swiss Chalet - at four o'clock in the afternoon."

"As you come into their park there is a doll house with a man sitting in it. He watches all day so they can't get out without him seeing them. Everybody wears badges with their names on them. I guess they don't know who they are."

"My Grandma says Grandpa worked hard all his life and earned his retardment. I wish they would move back home, but I guess the man in the doll house won't let them out."

The Humble Farmer

What a good boy am I

There was a time when early rising was considered a virtue. I can still remember the store where big old men in checkered shirts and suspenders sat around on high stools or leaned on the ice cream freezer and smoked or chewed as they boasted about how early they'd got up that morning.

There was an ethereal something about being up before anyone else that reeked of goodness and industry. Every little boy who ever walked into the store knew that staying in bed past sunrise was an egregious social sin. He knew it because the big old men always touted the benefits of early rising in every conversation they'd have with little boys.

Now I realize that they first learned how wonderful the world can be at 5 a.m. from my great-grandfather when they were kids - in the same store.

Old men have always been able to get away with such talk because no 10-year-old boy even suspects why all men over 50 are up before dawn.

So when I got to the age where I had no choice about being on my feet at daybreak, I was already programmed to flaunt my halo.

But our good old local store is long gone and there is no convenient place to stand around and brag to the young folk about how smart I am every morning.

This is no loss as old men unfortunate enough to wake up in the morning are no longer able to consider themselves better than those young enough to be able to sleep. This is why.

A small check arrived in the mail this morning - not much, but enough to buy a bag of groceries. Figuring I could spend the money before nine and get some self-righteous credits, I headed for town.

Right here you should know that I try to avoid trading in chain stores. The prices are certainly right - if you're carrying cash. But I'll gladly pay a bit more to shop where a friend will smile and gratefully take a two-party check. Store keepers who look at them, shake their heads and return them are telling me that they're not interested in cultivating me as a customer. I try to respect their wishes by never going back.

I'm a typical shopper because I like to be greeted by a smiling, warm personality behind the counter. George Varney makes every customer feel like the most important person in the world. On the other hand, I know a sullen, rude and angry clerk who has insulted, antagonized, and driven away more cash customers than any other professional in the country.

What all this means is that there was only one place in the world where I could stop this morning. But when I got there it still wasn't open.

Still chuckling over my cleverness at being afoot at such a respectable hour, I trotted over to the bank. They'd cash my check and then I could buy some things in the big supermarket. After all, I'm not stubborn, proud and inflexible - to the point of inconveniencing myself.

Although the bank was closed I saw a car drive up to a window on one side. I moved in closer to study the situation.

"Can I help you?" asked a tinny voice - two inch speakers can't be responsible for broadcast quality sound.

I explained to the box that my original mission was to get a check cashed but that I was also prancing about in the crisp morning air and feeling pretty good about it. There's nothing like getting ahead of your sluggardly neighbors by being up early.

"I'm sorry, we can't cash your check unless you're in a car."

"When will you be open for my friends in wheelchairs - others too feeble or too young to drive or too poor to buy a car?"

"Not until niyun."

A proud tradition will die with my generation. A 10-year-old kid would laugh at me if I tried to convince him that there is something to be gained by getting up before breakfast.

Appeals hearing set for Tewksbury 774 project

The three-member state Housing Appeals Board arrives in Tewksbury town hall on Tuesday to hold a public hearing at 10:30 a.m. on the Merrimack Meadows affordable housing project off River Road, which was denied by the town's board of appeals.

The project, which was the subject of a recent court action, is now before the state for an override of the appeals board vote.

In the court action, which sought to overturn the board's decision on the grounds that the results of the vote were not filed properly, the judge ruled that the developers had been sufficiently notified since they were in attendance at the appeals meeting when the vote took place.

Developers Robert Ahern and Roland Couillard, however, have continued the appeal process, to include a request before the state Housing Appeals Board to overturn the town decision. If granted, the state could grant permission for the pair to build the 224-unit project off River Road, on the banks of the Merrimack River.

The Merrimack Meadows project is the first affordable housing plan in Tewksbury to apply for a state appeal to the town's denial. The affordable housing laws, also called "Chapter 774," have been the center of controversy, including bills by state Reps. Jim Miceli and John Cox (D-Lowell) to suspend the laws, at least temporarily.

The public hearing on Tuesday will be open to the public.

Wilmington health board takes up septic system problems

by Arlene Surprenant

Two problems dealing with septic systems claimed the attention of the Wilmington Board of Health Monday night.

One problem centered on a lot on Boutwell Street and a water table that turned out to be higher than expected. Because the water table is 95.4 and a violation of Title V regulations exists, said members, any permit for a house on site is invalid.

Developers Robert Gillis and Jack Gearty currently have a foundation built and a septic system design dating from March, 1986. Under new Title V regulations governing septic systems, the men would have to raise the leeching bed another three and a half feet to be in compliance.

"You have us on the horns of a dilemma," said Chairman James Ficociello, who pointed out they were caught between old and new regulations. The actual design falls under the old regulations.

In the end, the board opted to go with the old regulations. The men were asked to raise the bed nine tenths of a foot and make sure swales, which would allow free water flow, would be done to the satisfaction of the Conservation Commission. It was also suggested septic plans be redrawn and certified by the engineer.

David Hanley purchased a lot on Eagle Road with an existing house and subdivided it with the intention of building a second house and selling both. His problem concerned a septic system which extended 13 feet into the second lot.

The septic system was put in by a former owner four years ago, apparently without the knowledge of the board of health.

"I don't get a real good feeling about this at all," said Ficociello, who was informed the case had been taken under advisement by the board of appeals.

Ficociello explained he was most concerned about future problems once the properties are sold. He outlined two possible solutions, to either give up the idea of subdividing the land or install a new system to meet the board's regulations. Hanley opted for the latter.

An Angel on Earth

My mother was an angel on earth. She was a minister of blessing to all human beings within her sphere of action. Her heart was the abode of heavenly purity. She had no feelings but of kindness and beneficence, yet her mind was as firm as her temper was mild and gentle. She had known sorrow, but her sorrow was silent. Had she lived to the age of the Patriarchs every day of her life would have been filled with clouds of goodness and of love. She had been 40 years the delight of my father's heart. If there is existence and retribution beyond the grave, my mother is happy. But if virtue alone is happiness below, never was existence upon earth more blessed than hers.

In memory of Edith Poloian. Sadly missed by her daughter, Patti and family, Nov. 6, 1987.

Nicaraguan minister at Wil. Methodist Church

The Rev. Santos Voza Tellez, representing Iglesia de Cristo, Managua, Nicaragua, will be guest speaker at an evening service Sunday, Nov. 15, 7:30 at the United Methodist Church in Wilmington. The public is cordially invited.

This Nicaraguan Church of Christ, formed in 1928, comprised of 96 congregations, is scattered through five regions of the country.

Following his presentation, the Rev. Tellez will answer questions. To highlight his visit, the church choir will provide special music, under the direction of Carolyn Stanhope.

Since pastors in this church receive no salary or housing support, a retiring free-will offering will be taken.

Refreshments will be served during the fellowship time immediately after the service.

The church provides access to persons with handicapping conditions, as well as audio amplification for those with hearing limitations.

Wilmington awarded by AAA

AAA Massachusetts has presented Wilmington with a national award for no pedestrian fatalities.

The special plaque was awarded to Chief of Police Bobby N. Stewart by Caroline J. Hymoff, manager of Safety Services for AAA Massachusetts.

"This AAA National Award is for no pedestrian fatalities for the year 1986," Hymoff said in a statement accompanying the plaque. "We congratulate the police and local officials who helped achieve such a fine showing in national competition with 1009 similar communities across the United States."

Communities participating in the AAA program are judged with others of comparable size and characteristics. They are evaluated on their maintenance of accident records, safety legislation, enforcement, traffic engineering, quality of school traffic safety programs and active public information and education programs.

This award is part of AAA's nationwide program to give recognition to local officials who are working toward greater pedestrian safety. Started in 1937, AAA's Pedestrian Safety Program has helped to reduce pedestrian deaths by 47 percent.

"Rock Talk" at Abundant Life

"Rock Talk," a special community awareness seminar, will be coming to Wilmington November 20-22 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Abundant Life School. The program will be sponsored by the Congregational, Baptist, and Methodist Churches.

The seminar will feature Joe Vieira of Westford who, for over 13 years, experienced what it was like to live behind the scenes of rock music with such famous groups as The Doors, The Beach Boys, Jimi Hendrix, and Alice Cooper. During his presentation, Vieira will point out the negative influences of rock on today's young record and video consumers. He will show how recent trends are affecting the lives of the artists and their audiences.

In the 1960's and 1970's, Vieira toured with name bands, designing elaborate concert stages, sound systems, and light shows. He also headed his own concert production company. Today, Vieira has his own ministry based in Westford and takes his message to guest churches throughout the state.

Woburn Street School

The Ocean World Educational Workshop will celebrate the beginning of our "Voyage of the Mimi" series on Thursday, November 5 with a program entitled "Marshlands." It will be offered to the fourth grade class but will grow to include the fifth and middle grade levels.

Mr. Donovan, music specialist; Mrs. Barbara Beaucher, media specialist; and Mrs. Cynthia Matt, art specialist are cooperating on a project to bring in-house KTV (Kid Television) to the Woburn Street School. Through the program, the children will get hands on experience in both the performing and technical ends of such an endeavor. The fifth graders will hold such key positions as reporting town and school news, sports, safety, free lance features, and -- favorite of all -- People Magazine. Every grade will be involved on some level.

The Wilmington School Department and the PAC have supplemented the grant money in order to get some necessary equipment for the project. The first program will be aired before the entire school population some time in the beginning of December.

Please Don't Forget: photographers from J.D. Brown Company will be at the school to take individual pictures of our children on Tuesday, November 10. Information regarding options and prices will be sent home at a later date.

Volunteers Laurie Hart, Janice Silva, and Arlene Soroka got unanimous approval at our last PAC meeting to be part of the Committee on Chapter 188 School Improvement Funds. The next PAC meeting will be held Monday, Nov. 9. Some of the topics slated for discussion are the approval of changes in the wording of PAC bylaws, renting ice time at the Wilmington rink for a skating party, and the PAC's School Pride contest.

Wildwood School Mr. Tikonoff is pleased to announce that the following students have been selected in their respective classrooms as Student of the Month for October: Jeff Austin, Jane Carroll, Patrick Carter, Kelly Curtin, Timmy Duggan, Tommy Heigham, Stephanie Lane, Devon Lyman, Adam Meixler, Alysia Tetrault, Charlie Webber, and Mary Wilson. Congratulations all! Pictures of last month's students are on display in the school lobby.

It was reported in Mr. Tikonoff's weekly Parent Newsletter that the children in grade 2 displayed Halloween dioramas and stories in the school library Wednesday, October 28.

Principal Tikonoff said he has been very encouraged by parental response. He wishes to remind all parents that he enjoys visits and calls and his door is always open.

The second annual Wildwood Spirit Day was a roaring success. On November 3, students were encouraged to wear their buttons, t-shirts, or sweatshirts. Ice cream as well as a crocus bulb was provided for each child from the school PAC. The bulbs will be planted in a newly designed area in the front of the school.

Classroom doors were once again decorated in creative fashion to reflect the meaning of that Wildwood spirit. Mr. Tikonoff expanded the day's festivities to include a choral presentation of patriotic songs by third, fourth, and fifth graders, the announcement of November's Students of the Month, and the election of Student Council officers.

Shawsheen School

In his own inimitable style, Shawsheen School Principal Robert Coffill auctioned off over 150 donated cakes and pies last Friday night at the howling successful pie auction.

This first time PAC- sponsored fundraiser garnered over $1300 for student programs and educational activities as a large crowd outdid themselves bidding on the mouthwatering offerings. Everything from cherry cheesecake and creme de menthe pies to holiday cakes and children's specialty items were the order of the night.

Top bid for the night was a pumpkin pie in a ceramic pumpkin container which went for a whopping $30. At the end of the evening, Mr. Coffill was "surprised" with a whipped cream pie in the face. Bet it was goooood!

A highly acclaimed educational program will be offered to children in all grades on Thursday, November 12 as the New England Touring Theater comes to Shawsheen. Grades K,1, and 2 will enjoy "Stories from Around the World" while grades 3, 4, 5 will be treated to "The Saga of Lewis and Clark." The PAC sponsored program is made possible through the generosity of all those parents who participate in our fundraisers.

Dates to Remember:

Friday, Nov. 6: monthly PAC meeting

Nov. 13: Report cards are sent home

Nov. 13: Student pictures taken at the school

Saturday, Nov.14: PAC Crafts Fair. All welcome.

With the advent of cold weather, many students think snow. Once again, fourth and fifth graders will have an opportunity to join the Ski Club and learn the fine points of the sport.

This year's six week program will begin January 6 and be conducted on Wednesday afternoons. Further information may be obtained at the school office.

Student of the Month awards go to those students in each classroom for outstanding cooperation, leadership, and overall performance in school. The following are the recipients for the months of September and October

Those who sign up will stay at one of Vermont's premier ski resorts complete with indoor pool, jacuzzi, and delicious food! Anyone interested in the latter trip can still sign up through Mr. Meskie or Mrs. Ahern.

New Junior Class officers at the Tech are Charlene Cestroni (Pres), Nathan Douglas Jr. (VP), Jason Krohm (secretary), and Kim Doiron (treasurer). The junior class will be selling flowers and candy canes for the Christmas holidays.

Arts Center is dedicated in Wilmington

Montage Ann Berghaus points out a feature of the work of Adele Passmore, in a montage entitled "To Make an Art Center."

Sunday, November 1, 1987 was a red letter day for those people in Wilmington who are interested in the arts.

There was a pleasant south-westerly breeze. The sun was shining, and beaming on all.

Over 150 persons were in the old Town Hall, on Middlesex Avenue, to participate and to help in an informal dedication of the Wilmington Art Center.

The interior had been freshly painted as a contribution of Paul Pintrich of Del Drive. There were many present who voiced, in one way or another, support for the Wilmington Council for the Arts. At the end of the program two members of the Wilmington Lions Club, Jim Buckley and Mike Burns, presented a check to Chairman Dan Ballou, for the use of the Wilmington Council.

The old building is over 140 years old. It was originally a Free Will Baptist Church, John M. Durgin, pastor. He was also the teacher in the old South School, the Butters Row School which stood beside the old Middlesex Canal. The baptismal pond which he used is still to be seen in the cemetery behind the former town hall.

After the Civil War the building was, for a dozen years or so, Wilmington High School and was also the Town Hall. In 1885 a new High School was constructed and the building was the Town Hall only, for nearly 100 years.

The Wilmington Council for the Arts is sharing the use of the old building with several community organizations.

The Community Schools will use the building on Tuesday nights for classes and will share a room with the Council as an office.

Wood carving, ceramics, astrology, oil painting and jewelry making are some of the subjects to be offered.

The Wilmington Emergency Center has an office in the basement. The office includes an emergency generator. If by chance the lights in Wilmington should fail, the people of the town could all go to the Art Center, and could spend the evening admiring the paintings and other exhibits. The Emergency Center will have office hours on Monday evenings.

Sunday afternoon was a time to glory in those paintings. All were, it is to be believed, by local artists.

There were two montages, one of which deserves a special tale. It was done by Adele Passmore, who spent some time with Ann Berghaus, showing the meaning of the work, entitled "The Making of an Art Center."

The writer spent some time in trying to get a picture of Ann and Adele and the montage. It just couldn't be done, for someone was always stepping in the way of the camera at a critical moment. The idea was to take the picture without either of the ladies being aware of what was being done.

This is fame achieved. Oh, well.

There was a fine photographic exhibit by high school students, in what had been the office of the principal assessor. Outstanding were photographs of a child, by Eva Gorski.

A fine, varied program was presented by the music departments of the High School and the North Intermediate School.

The outstanding performance for the afternoon was by a three year old girl from Orange, Mass. Katelin Campbell and her mother Patricia were with the grandmothers, Shirley Hatfield and Antoinette Campbell. The little girl was everywhere, definitely the star of the afternoon, in a brightly colored vertically striped dress. All eyes followed her, as she danced and pranced around the hall.

Chairman of the Wilmington Council for the Arts is Dan Ballou of Park Street. The vice chairman is Edith Michelson of Adams Street, the secretary is Evelyn Choat of Taplin Avenue and the treasurer is Antoinette Campbell of Brichwood Road.

Other members of the council are Bruce Jope, Auburn Avenue; Frances Keough, Burlington Avenue; Mary Masse, Cleveland Avenue; Tina Prentiss, Eames Street and Elizabeth White, Cedar Street.

Polonaise Christine Przyjemski of Hillside Way, Wilmington is a masterful pianist. The Wilmington High School freshman is shown playing "Polonaise" by Chopin.

Gorski photos Diane Lee of West Roxbury, art and photography teacher in the Wilmington schools, admires the photos of Rachel Lynn, by Eva Gorski.

$40 billion contract for Dynamics

Dynamics Research Corporation, 60 Concord Street, Wilmington, has announced that as the subcontractor to Computer Technology Associates of Colorado it has won a contract that will provide an approximate $40 billion stream of revenue over the next five years. The System Design and Analysis (SDAS) contract is with the Electronics System Division at Hanscom Air Force Base in nearby Bedford, Mass.

SDAS will provide support for the acquisition of an Integrated Tactical Warning and Assessment (ITWA) capability for the U.S. Air Force. The ITWA involves multiple systems that will detect air, missile, or space threats to the North American continent. It is designed to communicate any threat to a command center in Colorado Springs and then assess and react to that threat.

Albert Rand, president, said, "In addition to the significant size of this contract, we are also enthusiastic about the fact that SDAS represents an important step for us in the C'I (Command, Control, Communication and Intelligence) marketplace, which covers the future of all ground and space-based systems. We will now be positioned to take an expanding role in this growing area." Mr. Rand continued, "We do not expect a significant benefit from this contract for the balance of this year. The real effect on sales and earnings will be felt beginning in 1988."

Dynamics Research Corporation provides a wide range of computer-based technical data management systems, analyses, and management support for major Department of Defense programs, and manufactures digital position sensors.

Milestone
modem

Octocom marked the shipping of its 25,000th modem recently. From left, Frank Lawson, director of manufacturing, Ian Davison, president, and Stee Lytle, shipping co-ordinator.

Octocom ships 25,000th modem

Octocom Systems, Inc. marked the shipment of its 25,000th modem last month.

Located at 255 Ballardvale St. in North Wilmington, the company now exports to over 25 countries. The three-year old firm designs, manufactures and sells data communications products and network systems, equipment used to link computers at various locations.

The company was founded in October 1984 by Ian Davison and Van Chu. Davison serves as president, Chu as chairman of the board. They located their firm in a new industrial building built by Tambone Corporation next door to Charles River Breeding Labs. The company now employs 62 people.

A gift to Kidsplace from Analog

Barbara Cannon, 9 Roberts Rd., Wilmington had a tour of a part of the Analog facility at 804 Woburn Street, Wilmington, last Friday. Barbara is very much involved in making the Kidsplace playground at the Shawsheen Avenue School in Wilmington.

Last Friday she was the guest of Dick Mitchell, the facilities manager for Analog Devices at their Wilmington plant. Dick took the young lady around to see a part of the plant which employs about 17 hundred people. About three hundred, Mitchel said, were Wilmington residents.

The tour not only included the laser printing facility, but (horrors!) an office filled with young women, all of whom were wearing Halloween masks!

When the tour of Analog was completed Dick took Barbara to a coffee table, where he presented a $1 thousand check to help pay the costs of Kidsplace.

Kidsplace A novelty T-shirt, for Kidsplace project, is displayed by Barbara Cannon.

Halloween Vicky, in one of the Analog Devices offices, is just splitting as she lends serious thought to her work.

Visitors may wander from house to house seeing how different families or individuals celebrated the holiday.

Wilmington senior topics

Social went smoothly

I extend a compliment to all the seniors who attended the therapeutic social at the Lowell Hilton last Friday. Taking a large number of seniors on an enjoyable day social, which involves moving them to and from the destination safely in four buses is a tremendous responsibility. Plans and rules were implemented so that every part will go smoothly.

Many times plans and rules made and set will be broken by a few, but I can say without any reservations everyone cooperated beautifully, following all the rules. Cars were parked following directions, leaving enough room for the drivers to back the four buses with ease. The seniors remaining at the center until the handicapped bus was boarded with 26 seniors. To end a perfectly safe day, everyone remained in their cars when we returned until the buses cleared the parking lot. My thanks to everyone for their cooperation.

November will be busy

The time is moving along quickly, we are now in the month of November. This is one of our busiest months at the Senior Center. Plans are being made as Thanksgiving approaches for our shut-in holiday catered dinner. If you are a shut-in who has not been able to attend any of our monthly therapeutic socials and would like to be remembered through this holiday social, call the center give your name, address and telephone number. We will get back to you.

It is our hope to reach all of our shut-ins who wish to be remembered this holiday season. Seniors confined to their homes through illness, disability or frailty of age may qualify. Please call or have a family member call as soon as possible, as the monthly therapeutic socials and meals have to be ordered in advance.

Arts and crafts fair

Also in November, the arts and crafts holiday fair will be held. This year it is on Saturday the 28th and on Sunday the 29th. It is the hope of the committee that everyone is making articles to fill all the tables which will be set up in the function room. This year on Saturday, the 28th, a spaghetti supper will be served. Many desserts will be needed to top off the meal. A pastry table will also be set up. It looks as though we will all be busy cooking goodies of all kinds. So much for us to do in about three weeks, but we will make it as we have in past years.

Elks dinner dance

The Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks have given us over 250 tickets to their annual Wilmington senior citizen dinner dance. It will be held in the Elks Hall, Thursday, November 12 starting at 6:30 p.m. Those who have not picked up their ticket yet should do so any day between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The ### tickets are free.

Little warning

An elevated sugar level in the blood and a high cholesterol count seem to appear within the body with little or no warning. We will become aware of them when the illnesses attached to these levels strike, i.e. diabetes and heart attacks. By that time damage has already been done. To prevent this from happening it is a very good idea to have the risk assessment test taken by Abbie at her office in the town hall several times a year. An appointment is necessary and a small fee is charged for supplies. This test can prevent a serious illness from controlling us by stopping it as soon as it appears.

Fuel applications

Fuel applications are made out at the center by the coordinator on appointment only. Remember, a copy of your income, i.e. Social Security, pension or other income, has to be attached to the application when it is submitted for approval. If you think you may qualify, call the center for more information.

Whist November 9

The first whist party of the month will be held in the function room Monday, Nov. 9 beginning at 1 p.m.

Center closed Nov. 11

Next Wednesday, November 11, is Veterans' Day, a holiday. The center will be closed. Please make appointments accordingly. The minibus will not be on the road.

Horrible was the name, but cute was the game on Halloween night as nearly a thousand youngsters and parents gathered in Wilmington for the Horribles Parade. Caitlyn Nee was dressed as a bunny, and her brother Billy as a devil. Their parents are Chris and Cheryl Nee.

Jason Gardner was first in line at the goodies table.

A visit with the Hugh Wiberg's giant pumpkin was the finale of the evening for Heather and Stacey Caren. The Horribles Parade was organized by the Wilmington Recreation Department.

Which two are the twins? If their names don't give away the answer, their complexion will. From left, Tommy Rectenwald, Michelle White, Timmy Rectenwald and Sean White.

"Dracula" Mark Webster faked a romantic bite for skeleton Rene Barletta.

The Tildsley clan turned out in costume for the parade.

Quinnipiac College

Laure Duden of Glen Road, Wilmington and Dawn Marchese of Wisser Street are among the more than 700 freshmen transfer students enrolled at Quinnipiac College in Hamden, Conn.

The Tewksbury School Parent Advisory Councils (P.A.C.) have had an excellent start for the 1987-88 school year. The elementary school P.A.C.s (Dewing School, Heath Brook School, Trahan School and North Street School) each have prepared a brief article describing the major activities of the P.A.C. which have been compiled for this article.

Parents of school children are invited and encouraged to involve themselves in the activities of the P.A.C.s. Anyone wishing for this information about a particular P.A.C. should contact the principal of the school.

Louise Davy Trahan School

The Trahan P.A.C. has been busy this fall planning many school activities. In September the P.A.C. assisted the principal and staff during school orientations. In October the P.A.C. welcomed new members to its first meeting and has been busy with fundraising efforts. They held a successful Halloween party October 30 with over 250 parents and children attending. The PAC provided games, refreshments, and prizes to all who attended.

The children helped to decorate for the party by coloring many beautiful murals at an afternoon party. The students also got to see themselves in costume in a video Trick or Treat. The party was successful due to the tremendous support of both the parents and the staff of the school.

November is fourth grade month and the PAC is planning many turkey delights for the holiday. In December the PAC will hold a "Shop after School" program where the students can purchase inexpensive presents for their parents while the parents relax in another room. With the help of music teacher, Mrs. Betty Turner, the PAC is planning a Christmas pageant.

The Trahan PAC board members include Trudi Hennemuth, Cheryl Laffey, co-chairpersons; Ivette Manrique, Barbara Rockwell, treasurer; Terri Walsh, secretary; Eileen Eikelboom, program director; and Carol LaMonica, membership and hospitality.

Loella F. Dewing School

The Dewing School PAC began the year September 24 with an enthusiastic group of new members. The main topic discussed was the upcoming fundraiser Activities related to American Education Week will be held in Tewksbury's Schools during the school day. The purpose of these activities is to offer parents the opportunity to observe what is going on in the schools. American Education Week is November 16 through the 20th.

Following the issuance of report cards open house will be held in each school from 7 to 9 p.m. as follows:

High School, Tuesday, November 17;

Junior High School, Thursday, December 3;

North Street School, Monday, December 7;

Loella F. Dewing School, Tuesday, December 8;

Louise D. Trahan School, Tuesday, December 8;

Heath Brook School, Thursday, December 10.

featuring cookies and candies in decorative tins.

A "welcome back" luncheon for the Dewing teachers was hosted by the PAC on October 9 with specialties and baked goods prepared by members.

There was an enthusiastic response from the Dewing teachers who attended the Project Charlies training session, and we look forward to this program becoming part of the curriculum.

The third graders have been busy decorating pumpkins. Prizes will be awarded for the best three. The display of everything from baseball player pumpkins to chef pumpkins is being enjoyed by all in the Dewing library.

The fourth grade classes recently discussed all facets of electricity with a representative from Massachusetts Electric.

A unique program, sponsored by the PAC, to teach handicapped awareness to second graders, is in the planning stages. Representatives from the Anne Sullivan Center will visit the children to help them understand about various kinds of handicaps. A similar program was held at North Street School last year.

Heath Brook School

The Heath Brook School PAC has an exciting year of activities planned for the school children. The annual candy fundraising drive ran from September 25 - October 9. It was extremely successful due to the involvement of all the children. On October 29, an assembly was held when all the children who participated in the fundraiser were given prizes along with other items that were donated by local merchants for a raffle.

On November 2, "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," a puppet show, was performed by Encore at the school and was enjoyed by all the children.

On December 1, 2 and 3, Santa's Secret Workshop will be held at the school, where the children will have the opportunity to do their holiday gift buying with assistance from the PAC parents.

On January 18, the third annual family roller skating party will be held at Skate 3 in Tyngsboro for all children of the school and their families.

Other events scheduled for the year will be a magic show performed by Joe Carota in February. Benjamin Franklin historical presentation will be held in March for grades four through six. The annual book fair will be held in April and the ice cream party in June.

The next meeting of the PAC will take place on November 18, in the library of the Heath Brook School. All parents are invited to attend.

North Street School

As usual fall has been a busy time for the North Street P.A.C. It has also been a very rewarding time.

Our fundraiser was a success and proceeds will go to provide in-house programs, computer equipment, buses for field trips and we hope to meet some of the many other needs that may come up as the school year progresses.

Our membership drive was also successful. We look forward to working with our many new members and to the sharing of ideas and enthusiasm.

In December the children will again participate in the spirit of sharing, with our elderly friends at the state hospital. Prior to our visit each classroom will have collected items to stuff Christmas stockings for the patients. Our third grade class will make handmade cards and P.A.C. mothers will provide holiday goodies. The chorus under the direction of Susan Thorne will complete the holiday celebration by singing Christmas carols for the patients.

Many North Street School parents along with others from the elementary schools in Tewksbury recently attended a two day training session to teach Project Charlie. We are looking forward to helping to expand this very worthwhile drug awareness program. Volunteers are still needed. If you have a few free hours per week and would like to help, please contact Sal Gallo at the junior high school.

New board members for the North Street School P.A.C. are Mary Nichols, Jean Roberson, chairpersons; Louise Kelly, fundraising chairperson; Elaine Zunino, treasurer; Denise Pitts, secretary; Debbie Cody, program director; and Denise Morandi, hospitality.

On Thursday, October 29, all four P.A.C.'s had an open meeting at the Dewing School. Dr. Farley, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of curriculum, discussed the new social studies curriculum recently implemented and how it is currently being used in the schools. The new social studies program is well liked by the staff and offers the students of Tewksbury a wide variety of interesting topics.

N. Reading chosen for postal annex

The U. S. Postal Service has chosen a site in North Reading for the site of the new Middlesex-Essex mail distribution center. A sixty-acre site, in back of Zayre's, on Main Street (Route 28) has been designated.

Construction of the new facility to be called a "general mail facility" could begin early in 1988, if postal authorities can put the deal together. Included in the problems is the obtaining of all necessary building permits and other approvals from the town of North Reading.

The Postal Service is planning a 245,000 square foot facility twice the size of the present center in Woburn. The center in Woburn was completed in 1979 at a cost of $3.8 million. It serves all the 018 and 019 ZIP communities in Essex County and in a part of Middlesex County.

Construction of the new facility is expected to take two years.

Wildcats clinch title, 3-2

The Wilmington High School field hockey team recaptured the Merrimack Valley championship Tuesday evening at Chelmsford with an exciting 3-2 victory under the lights.

Both teams shared first place for the better part of this season, and the victor would clinch the championship.

Amy Lavina, senior center link, started the scoring at 6:22. Lori Cormier, junior link, passed back to Lavina who blew it by the Chelmsford goalie. At 17:15 a Chelmsford Lion forward tucked in their first goal. Lavina followed at 22:26 with an identical goal with the assist again going to Cormier.

The second half scoring for the Wildcats began early at 2:27, as Laurie Robinson scored from a Jennifer Ryan lead pass. Not long after 8:27 Chelmsford scored its second goal on a controversial play. One official signaled no goal, the other said it counted. The goal stood.

With a score of 3-2, the Wildcat defense held the Chelmsford forwards at bay.

A total team effort was displayed by Wilmington. The exceptional play of Amy Lavina, Lori Cormier, Sue Killilea and Sue McFayden made the difference.

Wilmington 3 Tewksbury 0
Wilmington ended its regular season with a fine 3-0 victory over Tewksbury. Amy Lavina started where she left off Tuesday with a blast by Tewksbury goal Cathy Driscoll. Lori Cormier got the assist. At 7:43, junior Leanne Bishop finished off a nice play started by Laurie Robinson and Amy Lavina.

In the second half junior Jennifer DelNinno scored her 12th goal of the season, with an assist going to Amy Lavina.

The fine defensive play of Amy Hamilton, Jill Martyn and Kristen Peters prevented Tewksbury penetration. Tewksbury managed only two shots on goal.

At the other end of the field, Cathy Driscoll turned away 24 shots in another outstanding day for the Tewksbury goalie.

The Wildcats finish another championship season with a 13-1-2 regular season record in the Merrimack Valley Conference. The Redmen, in the process of rebuilding, finish in the basement with a 1-12-3 final slate. Wilmington will begin tourney play next week.

Pop Warner rebirth

Youngsters learn with pride

by Mike Kelley

Wilmington Pop Warner football was taken out of the storage room September 13 of this year after many years of neglect. After much hard work putting together a staff and recruiting teams and cheerleaders, the season finally got underway on a rainy Sunday, September 13. With parents and friends standing under dark gray clouds, the first games took place and the youngsters got a chance to play real football for the first time in three years.

Looking back on that first day now that the season is almost completed brings back many good thoughts and lessons learned for everyone involved. For the most part, the A,B,C and D teams had little or no previous experience playing any kind of organized sport. Getting the teams into physical condition and teaching them the basics of football was a very demanding job.

The coaches and staff worked long hours many weeknights with the players in practice. The parents shuttled back and forth each night to take little Johnny or Mary down to the Glen Road field for the two hour training program each night. It was a lot of hard work and sacrifice on everyone's part, but now that it is almost over for this year, the memories of the long hours of practice and the big games are now pleasant indeed.

Although the first games did not bring many victories to the teams, the fledgling athletes made up for their lack of skill and luck through their enthusiasm. Each player tried their best to carry out their coaches' directives in the face of inexperience. The fears and dreams, the hopes for a moment of glory and the enthusiasm for the game was present from the outset of the season.

The players, cheerleaders and coaches can take a lot of pride in what they have accomplished.

A' team coach Dana Danrell knew the teams were at a big disadvantage because the players lacked experience, but he feels that from the first game in September the "teams have shown lots of improvement as they learned to understand the fundamentals of the game, recognize the calls and follow through the plays. Above all, they learned how to work together as a team, and that is one of the best athletic experiences anyone can have." He feels that this group is a great bunch of kids to have worked with, and next year they will put that experience to work as veterans of Wilmington Pop Warner.

B' team coach Leo Campbell was really delighted and surprised upon winning the first game with his kids. "It was just fantastic," he said. "We never expected it, and it really pumped up the kids."

"Despite later defeats and disappointments, the kids continued to work hard at playing ball," praised Campbell. "I think that once these kids get enough practice and experience, there will be a big change in their performance next season."

According to coach Campbell, "knowing the plays and how to work your position to help get the ball downfield is very important. Once the kids know how to do those things, they will be equipped to play very well. But it takes time and practice to get them there. Team unity is also important," offered Campbell. "I stress team unity all the time. It will make life better for them if they learn how to work as a team. It's a good experience for them." Campbell feels that next year his team should be much improved.

C' team coach Chris Peabody felt that the first few games were hard on his kids because they played against several veteran teams, including Reading and Dracut, but participating in those games and getting involved with the different plays and positions and finding out what to do when the action began was worth all the effort as far as he is concerned.

"The kids have benefited in all these games one way or another," said Peabody. "Each game was a step closer to being a better player, a better team." Peabody noted that the defensive line is showing good improvement and promise, with the offense also getting into form. "Overall, I feel good about this team. We are building our corps of veterans for next year," noted Peabody.

Ray Ventura, coach of the D' team, probably had the toughest job. He had to take the little guys and not only build up confidence in them, but also teach them a little discipline so they could learn how to play football. It took plenty of practice and hard work to get the small fries working as a team, but coach Ventura and his assistants did it. "These kids are in the best position if they want to follow football," said Ventura. "They start at the bottom and each year move up. By the time they are on the A' team, Wilmington is going to have some great football games in the Pop Warner program."

In retrospect, the coaches and staff agree that win, lose or draw, this season has been a big boost for the Wilmington youngsters. These games have helped to teach the players self-discipline, team spirit, and have given them valuable tools for use in the future.

Nothing is impossible for the youngsters of Wilmington Pop Warner football.

Travel team results

Girls' Under 121

With a 3-1-1 record the girls traveled to Medford for their sixth game on Saturday, October 17, and with great success. They logged another shutout, 5-0.

Karen DeFrancesco began the scoring with an unassisted goal late in the first half. Although the goal

Well done

There has been plenty of good sportsmanship displayed this season before, during and after Wilmington Youth Soccer contests.

was unassisted, halfbacks Adrienne Fay, Denise Langone and Emily Dehoff kept the pressure on the Medford defense.

The second goal came from Jill Murphy after a great pass from Shannon Jepson. The rover Jamie Forgett and fullbacks Lynette Sbrano and Erin Gilhooley kept the play in the Medford half of the field. Later the Nancy Pote scored an unassisted goal making the score 3-0 in Wilmington's favor.

Wilmington continued with Heather Pillsbury scoring from a pass from Karen DeFrancesco with Laura DeMarco, Erin Falzone, and Amy Herman applying the pressure. From her rightwing position Shannon Jepson made the score 5-0.

Mary Armata played goalkeeper most of the shutout, giving the team a key contribution. She was replaced late in the game by Denise Langone.

Boys' Under 12-11

Wilmington 7 Beverly 3
Victory was the name of the game, as the Wilmington team did battle with Beverly. The team stands with an 8-0-8 record.

Five minutes into the game, David Maglio managed to put the ball into the net, showing the other team that they were ready.

Good goaltending by Beverly prevented Eric Jones, Danny King and Garrett Whittemore from scoring. The boys kept the goalie busy with many shots on goal, but were unable to score.

Shawn Barden kept the motivation going by scoring goal number two. Shawn has scored in every game so far this year.

After six shutout games, Richie Barden was finally put to work as a goal was scored by Beverly with a fluke indirect kick, making the score, 2-1. Soon after another goal was made with a penalty kick.

The strong line of fullbacks Keith Audette, Kevin O'Leary, and Paul Heigham managed to get and keep the ball where it belonged, allowing Doug Olender to score.

Many shots were fired at the Beverly net, but it was Timmy Allard who managed to get it in. The boys then handled the ball with such expertise that Beverly was unable to get it away.

Eric Jones made a perfect pass to Rob Bentley, who then sailed the ball into the net, making it 5-2.

Ryan Swasey, who had a chance to play the forward position for a while, kicked the ball right into the net, but unfortunately the first half ended and the goal did not count.

Beverly came back strong in the second half by scoring off goalie John Florence, but that was the last one he let slip by him.

The overall team playing was the key to Phil Florence's goal with an assist by Chris Gill. Timmy Allard ended the game with the last goal, making it a 7-3 win.

Girls under 14

In games four and five, the Wilmington girls U-14 travel team hosted Wakefield, winning 4-1, and then played at Lincoln where they tied, 1-1. The team is now at the midway point of the season and looking forward to improving their 3-1-1 record.

The Wakefield game was an exciting come-from-behind win for Wilmington, as they came roaring back from a 1-1 deficit early in the game to score an impressive 4-1 victory. They started slowly as Wakefield scored early, and may have added to their early lead as they kept peppering the Wilmington goal, but Stacey Ouellette prevented any further damage with some outstanding saves in goal. The defense finally got untracked and started reversing the Wakefield charges. The defensive stars were led by Jennifer Rago at sweeper, Tina Kelly, Ann Marie Barletta and Tara Landers at fullback.

Alyssa Falzone broke the scoring ice midway through the first half as she scored on a breakaway. Although the forwards and halfbacks continued pelting the Wakefield goal with a barrage of shots, the first half ended deadlocked 1-1.

As the second half started the Wilmington girls continued to pressure the Wakefield goal, and it paid off, as Alyssa Falzone scored her second goal of the game on a nice feed from Ellen Dehoff. Not content with her assist, Ellen also scored the third Wilmington goal on a strong long range bomb. Julie Robinson scored the final goal on a nifty feed from Toby Kenney.

From midway through the first half until the final gun, the Wilmington girls controlled the game. Once they got untracked after the shaky start, the whole team played very aggressively in particular, Gina DiSantis, Joy Mochaud and Marissa Volpe.

The Lincoln game was a tough aggressive battle by both teams, as the Wilmington sidelines took on the appearance of a combat clinic, as Jennifer Rago, Marissa Volpe, Ellen Dehoff, Gina DiSantis, and Alyssa Falzone were all sidelined by injuries. During the first half neither team had many scoring opportunities, and as a result the half ended in a 0-0 tie.

The second half started as the first half had been played with plenty of aggressive soccer, but no scoring. Finally, the injuries took their toll, as Lincoln started getting more scoring opportunities. Although Stacey Ouellette made some outstanding saves to preserve the shutout, Lincoln eventually scored on a breakaway. Although they kept the pressure on, Lincoln was unable to add to their lead due to strong play by the defense, led by a limping Jennifer Rago at sweeper, Tina Kelly, Ann Marie Barletta and Sarah Callahan at fullback.

Although forwards Alyssa Falzone, Ellen Dehoff, Rebecca Bouchie, and Julie Robinson all had good scoring opportunities in the second half, the Lincoln goaltender made some great saves to preserve the shutout.

Finally, with less than two minutes left in the game, Alyssa Sellers took a shot which the Lincoln goalie caught, but bobbed and the ball rolled into the goal to tie the game. The last two minutes were frantic, as both teams tried to score, but neither could and the game ended in a 1-1 tie.

Boys under 141

The Wilmington boys under 141 team has extended its record to 5-0 with three recent victories. On October 10 they traveled to Billerica United's field. With only five minutes gone, John Lynch passed to Tommy Zaya for Wilmington's first goal. Five minutes later Lynch scored after a great lead pass from fullback Christian Armata.

Wilmington's third goal came just before the half ended when Zaya crossed the ball from right wing to left winger Brian Wallace on a very nifty play. The second half started well for Wilmington when, at the four minute mark, Anthony Bonariggo scored with a good assist going to Gerard Forgett.

The final Wilmington goal was scored by John Lynch, unassisted, when he put in a 30 yard shot from his stopperback position.

Wilmington's 5-0 shutout was helped by Eric Flynn's goalkeeping, the fullback play of David Oatis and Tommy Killilea, and Timmy Bolger's work at forward.

The following week the boys hosted Medford. Midway into the first half Gerard Forgett assisted Tommy Zaya for Wilmington's first goal. Only five minutes later Zaya fed a pass to Anthony Bonariggo for a perfectly played goal. Just one minute after that Medford scored when their leftwing put in a loose ball.

The hard fought first half ended 2-1 Wilmington. Mark Zambarnardi and John Martins played very well at halfback during the half, constantly helping the offense mount many attacks. The second half began with Medford scoring in only two minutes.

The score remained tied until the 26 minute point when Jimmy DeMarco passed to John Lynch for Wilmington's go-ahead goal. In less than three minutes Lynch scored again after a good pass from Timmy Bolger.

The game ended 4-2 Wilmington.

Pop Warner cheers

The Wilmington Pop Warner cheerleaders attempt to keep their teams' spirits high during action at Methuen Sunday afternoon.

Looking for answers

Pop Warner

Methuen blanks young Wildcats

A team

The A' team travelled to Methuen Sunday where they were defeated, 28-0. The Methuen team was a very physical team and a lot of the Wilmington players were banged up.

Outstanding defense players: John Burke, defensive end, recovered a fumble. Mark Garnett, middle guard, made some good tackles. Brian Falzone, linebacker, made some key tackles.

Outstanding offensive players: Brian Murray and Bobby Conchiglia, running backs, both ran the ball well. Derrick Stokes in his first start at right end did a good job.

B Team

The B' Team travelled to Methuen where they sustained a 25-0 loss. Derrick Fullerton, defensive tackle, had some good tackles. Randy Johnson, halfback, ran the ball well.

In the second half the defense played well. They stood strong and Methuen was unable to score any more points. Scott Molgard and Chad Downs led the defense.

In the third quarter Wilmington was driving toward a touchdown but unfortunately fumbled the ball on the 20 yard line.

C Team

The C' squad also travelled to Methuen and was defeated, 35-0. Methuen was a very strong team but it was good to play such an experienced team.

Outstanding players: Mike Alonardo, halfback and defensive end, played well both offensively and defensively. Mike also ran for a couple of first downs. Brian Tildsley, quarterback and middle linebacker, had a great game.

Steve O'Neill, flankerback and safety, made several tackles on defense and did an exceptional job of blocking. Mike Gilbert had a good offensive game.

Brian Ashdown, nose guard, and Keith Pearlstein, middle linebacker, played exceptionally well. The C' team should compete well with Marlboro on Sunday, November 8.

D Team

The Wilmington D' squad lost to Dracut, 20-0. This was the third loss in a row for the young Cats.

However, there are silver linings in every game and this one was no exception. Bobby Plunkett turned in some good plays at defensive end and center. Phil Ritucci, a stellar defensive player, started his first game at running back and did exceptionally well.

Also at new positions were Jack Warford and Lee Trimarchi who played middle linebacker and defensive end respectfully.

Mike Giordano and Wayne Francis switched positions at the quarterback and running back slots and directed the offense to some big gains in the third and fourth quarters.

In particular, the halfback option pass from Mike Giordano to Lee Trimarchi was effective.

Other contributors for the Wildcats were Danny Boghossian, John Reitchel, Eric Clancy, Billy Holloway, Billy Nasta and Derrick Powers.

Remember, there are no losers on this team, just players who have lost some ballgames.

Next week Wilmington travels to Marlboro to end the long and educational season for coaches and players alike. Buses to the games, for the parents and spectators, are being supplied by the Wilmington Pop Warner Board of Directors. Let's give a boost to the teams by attending the last game.

TMHS clinches

The TMHS girls' soccer squad (7-3-2) has qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tourney in their first year of varsity play. Julie Hunt scored two unassisted goals and Kerry Halloran scored from Nicole Gerrior in the 3-1 win over Reading Monday. Goalie Jane Carey made 13 saves in Tewksbury's seventh win.

Outdoors Column

by Bill Conlon
The Massachusetts Fisheries & Wildlife Board is considering the Blue Whale, Longnose Sucker and Burbot for addition to the list of endangered species.

But there's one more critter that should be placed on the endangered species list -- the gray squirrel.

Say what?
(Don't you just love the sound of all those mental brakes being slammed at the same time?)

Yup, the common gray squirrel is more scarce than you may realize, although it probably isn't in any real danger of extinction.

Squirrels are common in parks and backyards, but the simply don't exist out in the woods. In fact, a recent stroll through my neighborhood revealed no fewer than 20 squirrel nests high in the oaks, with at least five in one tree alone. But so far I haven't seen a single squirrel or nest while in the woods.

There are pine squirrels aplenty in the woods, and it's always open season on the noisy red rodents, but they taste terrible. It's my policy never to shoot anything I'm not willing to eat, so the pine squirrels are safe.

Incidentally, my Uncle John makes a squirrel pie that makes my mouth water at the very thought of it. Good stuff, at least for those of us who like game for supper.

More than once, however, I've had a red squirrel sit not five feet above my head, screaming at me and calling me every cuss-word in the book. Normally I just swear back at him and call it a draw.

But during deer season, when I'm trying to sit still and blend into the woods without a trace, it gets a bit annoying to have a small red rodent yelling out my position. Every so often the temptation arises to exchange a clap of thunder for an hour's worth of bad grammar from a pine squirrel. Sort of wash his mouth out with lead and gunpowder, but I can resist ... at least for a few more minutes .... grrrr!

But the gray squirrel is almost a stranger in the woods, unlike his red cousin. New Hampshire has a short season for grays, and some of that state's northern counties don't allow hunting for them at all.

Here in the Commonwealth the season runs from October 20 until the new year, with a daily bag limit of five grays apiece. If I could hunt my backyard I'd have that bag limit filled before my morning coffee got cold. Instead, I've yet to even see a single gray in the woods so far this season.

Simply put, gray squirrels seem to have learned our limitations, and they aren't exactly terrified of us. My housecat, in fact, is more likely to scare one of the local fattys up a tree than I am. Instead, the local grays just give me a dirty look and go back to cleaning out the bird-feeder. They know I'm harmless -- since I can't chase through the trees or catch them on foot -- so why should they worry?

Correction -- there is one way I do scare them, and that's with the family car. The number of road-killed squirrels seems higher than average this year, probably because the squirrel population has little to worry about and so their numbers have risen dramatically. The only place they seem to get caught is crossing the yellow lines. (Yes, I do try to avoid them, unless there's traffic behind me. Then ... well ...)

But as for getting caught in the woods, squirrels are too smart for that. They know they can find food, shelter and romance in the suburbs, so why would they want to venture into the woods?

For gray squirrels at least, the streets of the city are paved with golden popcorn. Who needs the hunters and hawks in those awful woods? Brrrrr.

Makes you wonder sometimes if squirrels know how to smile ...

-Tackle Box-

Small game hunting is now in full swing, with pheasant, partridge, squirrel, rabbit and quail now in season. And as of this last Monday, add fox, coyote and archery season for deer to the list. Waterfowl hunting will resume on Nov. 21.

Incidentally, don't believe for a second that no coyotes live in this area. Not too long ago, a truck struck and killed a coyote in Dracut, and the town dog officer said the animal was a pure-bred, not the occasional coy-dog hybrid. They're out there alright ...

And speaking of archery season for deer, six young men in the Belchertown area are now sadder and wiser about hunting near the Quabbin Reservoir. According to an article in this week's Boston Globe, the six men were caught inside the Quabbin complex, with bows, after the Monday start of the archery season for deer.

Those familiar with the area know that all roads leading into the Quabbin wildlife area end in locked gates with signs that read "No trespassing, no hunting, no fishing, no camping, no fires, no hiking ..." and the list should include "no kidding." Those six young men must realize that now. Don't do it!

The state Fisheries and Wildlife Board will be meeting at the Division's Field Headquarters in Westboro, Mass. next Tuesday. At 3 p.m., the meeting will open up for public hearings on whether to add the Blue Whale, the Longnosed Sucker, the Burbot and a few invertebrates to the list of Endangered Species and Species for Special Consideration.

A flash from the "Now You See 'Em, Now You Don't" department. This weekend I joined Bob Iverson and his co-worker, Ken Avola, on a return visit to the same location in Groton where Bob and I flushed a half-dozen partridge and woodcock the weekend before. Poof! Not a trace, not a bird. Hmmm. We're open to theories.

Tryouts

Tryouts for the Tewksbury boys' under-16 traveling team will take place Saturday, Nov. 21 and Saturday, Nov. 28 at noon at the Junior High School main field. Tryouts for the boys' under-19 traveling team will be conducted on the same date at 2 p.m. at the Junior High School.

Tryouts for the girls' under-14 travel team will be conducted Saturday, Nov. 21 and Saturday, Nov. 28 at noon at the Livingston Street Field. Tryouts for the girls' under-16 travel team will take place on the same dates at 2 p.m. also at Livingston Street. All candidates for the traveling teams must make at least one tryout.

Another player cut down

Redmen running back Jay Rideout, who went down with a shoulder injury in Saturday's 0-0 tie with Lawrence, turns the corner behind the lead blocking of junior guard Scott Blades (52). The Redmen look to get back on the winning track when they host Billerica this Saturday in a 2 p.m. start at Doucette Field.

with some fine defensive work by Michael King, David Dussault, and Christian Armata. Without their efforts the game's outcome may have been very different.

On the next day the team hosted a makeup game with Lincoln. Early in the game John Lynch scored Wilmington's first goal on a nifty breakaway unassisted goal. Ten minutes later Lincoln's rightwinger tied the score on a nice shot into the far corner.

Mike King put Wilmington ahead when he took a shot from the midline and scored as his shot bounced in front of the Lincoln keeper and over his head for the 2-1 lead.

Wilmington's offense began the second half right where they had left off. At the six minute mark Jimmy DeMarco scored with a fine assist to John Lynch. Near the midway point Briar Wallace got his second assist on a great pass to DeMarco for Wilmington's fifth goal.

In the final five minutes Gerard Forgett scored assisted by David Dussault and Mike King found paydirt with an assist to Forgett for the 7-1 final score.

John Martins was tremendous as goalkeeper, many times beginning Wilmington's offense with great punts after good saves. Halfbacks, Mark Zambarnardi and David Dussault were constantly helping the transition game so necessary to a victory. The strong defense of David Oatis and Tommy Killilea made the day much easier for the entire Wilmington team.

Boys' under 12-11 Wilmington 2 Reading United 0

After seven games the team remained undefeated with a 2-0 win against Reading United. Numerous attempts at scoring were foiled by good Reading goaltending.

Great hustling by Eric Jones and Danny King set the pace for an exciting first half. After several mishaps and disappointing tries by the team, Doug Olender succeeded in scoring the first goal.

A booming shot by fullback Ryan Swasey looked to be the second goal, but his tremendous power made the ball sail over the net.

The second half was all Wilmington. The Reading goalie had his hands full by the constant pressure of Timmy Allrad, Paul Heigham and Garrett Whittemore.

With an explosive breakaway by Chris Gill and Shawn Barden, the second goal of the game was scored. The excellent team playing the boys have shown has resulted in a perfect record.

Deadline

The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday night at 6 p.m. Any high school or youth sports copy received after that deadline will not be included in that week's sports section.

New memberships must be purchased by the time of registration or order to be eligible for the member rate of a class.

kill a normal, healthy, middle-aged (well, soon to be middle-aged) guy. Then who's going to feel guilty? Feeling sorry as you lean over my casket to gaze into my beautifully made-up eyelids is a little too little, a little too late, ladies.

So bachelors live unorthodox lifestyles. Is it going to hurt anybody if I don't go about my business the way Joe-Shmoo, married with five kids and one on the way, down the street does?

Mom and girl friend think so. Just take this recent visit as another prime example. Just before they arrived I had to run over to Purify Supreme to pick up some coffee, tea, tonic and a few bakery items. I eat out a lot, so I didn't have much around the kitchen on which to snack.

Well, almost as soon as my mother arrived she checked inside the refrigerator to see if I had enough food to survive on. She was appalled to find nothing but three cases of beer inside.

"I like to keep plenty of beer on hand for my friends," I told her, explaining we like to drink a lot on weekends, especially during the football season.

My darling mother didn't buy the excuse for taking up every inch of the refrigerator space with beer. "You don't even have butter in there!" she exclaimed.

"Nor does he have salt," my girl friend piped up. "He doesn't even have vinegar in his cabinets!"

If I could have found an empty corner to crawl into, I would have. They were all obscured with either piles of old New Yorkers, rubbish bags or dirty sheets rolled up in giant balls. Heck, I didn't stand a chance to survive this barrage. I decided to stand there and take it like a man.

I needed about six more inches and forty more pounds. The next round of verbal artillery just about put me in the George S. Patton Home for Over-the-Hill Soldiers.

"I can't even cook your son a decent meal," my girl friend practically shouted. Frustration was visible all over the young woman's magnificently sculptured countenance. "His oven doesn't work!"

I handed them a round back. "Look, the darn thing hadn't worked in years. I haven't had to worry about it because I eat out a lot. I'm never home. If somebody else lived here, then I'd worry about my oven not working."

My mother simply shook her head in disgust. "Will you please get your oven fixed, so this poor girl can fix you a decent meal?"

A decent meal I didn't need. My girl friend rubbing suntan lotion on my back as we both stretched out on a warm, white beach in the Caribbean I needed. I told them I'd settle for some new jeans.

"That reminds me," my mother said. "You look like a slob. Don't you ever buy new clothes anymore?"

"Yeah, I just spent four hundred bucks on new sweaters for the winter."

When I want to dress up I put on socks, I added. I didn't care to tell them about my experience at the shoe store the other day. I had an important interview and I wanted new shoes to go along with the outfit. (Yes, mom, there are times when I actually put on a two-piece suit!) I was dressed to the nines, but couldn't locate a pair of socks to wear to the shoe store. So I threw on two different socks — one argyle, the other dark brown (the suit was also dark brown). I didn't, however, bother to put on shoes. I figured I'd simply buy a pair at Florshiem's, then wear them out of the store. You should have seen the look I got from the guy in the shoe store when he saw me stroll in with no shoes and unmatched socks! If mother heard about that one, she'd surely leave me out of the will.

On the other hand, I was quick to point out how much I've improved in other areas. "You might notice that I am particularly good about making my bed," I noted. "And I'm doing one crackerjack job of keeping the bathroom and kitchen clean. And let's not forget about the wonderful job of dusting and vacuuming I've been doing lately."

They did not seem impressed. They may as well have said, "That's no big deal, you're supposed to do those things when you own your own house, dummy."

Not when you're a bachelor. I decided there and then I was going to call a maid service. I'll be darned if I'm ever going to lift a finger in those directions again.

Bachelors, I also decided at that moment, have to take a lot of balcony. People tend to forget that couples have a second individual around to help out with things like hanging up clothes and putting away shoes. So to cope with the absence of this second person in my home I have learned how to create what I describe as "designer clutter." It's clutter that is chaotic yet artsy at the same time. I tried to explain to my mother that this is the way all great artists live their lives. F. Scott Fitzgerald, Picasso and Brando, just to name a few.

"That's great," my mother responded. "When you become Picasso, you let me know, and I'll let you live your life that way. In the meantime, you should do something about the mess. And get the oven fixed and buy some food for the refrigerator."

I felt the urge to tell those two women in my life that it is much harder to create designer clutter than it is to live in a sterile "couples" environment (I've lived in both, so I knew from whence I came, but opted to drop the issue).

"Look," I said, "I'm a very rushed bachelor. I don't have time to worry about my shirts being hung up every time I step into the house and undress. A slightly messy house is commonplace among bachelors. We have an excuse for being sloppy, if we want to."

Again, the women in my life refused to buy it. So I grasped at one final straw. "Look, being a little sloppy frees me up to do other more important things. Like stopping to smell the flowers."

I quoted Georgia O'Keeffe, who once wrote, "Still — in a way — nobody sees a flower — really — it is so small — we haven't time — and to see takes time."

"I like to take the time to see the flowers," I said. "To do that I've got to let some other less important things go. Things like putting away my shoes when I come home in the afternoon."

My mother reminded me that it is fall, and there are no flowers to see. I hesitated in my tracks, then said, "Well, there's always the leaves."

I decided to take a stroll outside to catch a glimpse of the leaves in my backyard.

Even if they had all turned brown and fallen to the ground.

A Year in the Forest

and a careful study of "A Year in the Forest," coupled with a willingness to bushwhack (with a cautious eye not to disturb wildlife) will yield up the forest's treasures.

One Reading man who lives on the forest edge related tales this past weekend of foxes gleefully chasing cats — of feeling earth tremors as he stood frozen at the sudden, swift approach of a thump-thump-thumping which brought him face-to-face with a white-tailed doe — and of the constantly changing beauty of the place.

Yet it's not all bucolic poise, peace and poetry. Though only a faded remnant of New England's once-mighty forests primeval, these Reading wildlands still comprise a real-life, blooded woods, after all — and that still means the soundless flight of the nightowl and the subsequent scream of its prey.

And if cowardly cats are no match for the Reading foxes — Jack Cairl's valiant dog, Bunter, though only fox-sized himself, with at least the heart of a lion, once fearlessly pursued a red fox deep underground. The combat was indeed terrible, Cairl relates, and it seemed a toss-up whether fox or dog would be in at the death — but the battle finally raged close enough to the den's entrance for Cairl's son to pull Bunter out by the tail and save him for another day — and further feckless sallies after skunks and porcupines.

Because of the ever-present threats of pyromania and vandalism, according to a pair of co-ed hikers encountered in the wood, the dirt roadways that interlace the forest have been blocked with toothy boulders and the paved ways with chain-link gates — but that probably just serves to make the place more serene for those who want peace from vehicular traffic.

For a thrill in bleak autumn, you may find within the forest, along an earthen track, at the crest of a spiny ridge (esker), a huddling hobgoblin of a scrub oak tree, perched like a day-sleeping spider-form beast ready for nightfall to crawl and spring.

In the hotter months, as Emerson reminds us "summer will have its flies. If we walk in the woods, we must feed mosquitoes."

"A Year in the Forest," with its gemstone illustrations by artist Barbara Mellin — includes a sketch of summer's mosquito — pre-history's pterodactyl — and the giant snapping turtle "big as a washtub," once sighted by author Cairl.

There are muskrat, wood duck, coltsfoot and Joe-Pye-weed — woolly caterpillar, violets, veery and vines in the moonlight — all included among the 90 Barbara Mellin illustrations.

There's much more of course — in both book and forest — involving in the woodland riches something for every season, but I leave it to you to discover the whole.

"Today," according to Cairl's introduction, "the official guardian of the forest is the Town Forest Committee which, as the forest changes, tries to insure that those changes are in tune with nature."

"I am told that in the Old Council Ring, for those who would listen, the excited joyful voices of the gathering citizens, from 60 years ago, still sound. In the forest, the friendly ghosts of the past mingle freely with wind sounds, bird songs and the soft crunch of your own foot-falls."

The Stoneham Friends of the Library are dedicated to raising money in support of extra books, magazines, equipment and programs that are outside of the normal yearly operating budget provided by the town.

Among the many items funded by its activities are memberships in various museums, puppeteers hired for special children's library events and maintenance of the overnight book depository boxes.

A major fundraising event is the November Book and Bake Sale on Saturday, November 14 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the library on Main Street.

Join us on Saturday, November 14 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the Stoneham Public Library for a cup of coffee, something homemade and a bag of books. This is the perfect time to get rid of the books you have already read while stocking up on a fresh supply. Don't let the winter snow storm and flu season find you without a good stock of reading materials!

Forty members of AARP, Chapter 1124, really enjoyed the trip to the Berkshires just a few weeks ago, and many felt that they received an extra bonus because the day after their return a freak snowstorm hit the Berkshire area. Excellent timing by Leonard Gebhardt, the Chapter's Tour Chairman.

The November meeting with President Carolyn Norton presiding will be held on Friday, November 13 at 1:30 p.m. However, because of the "White Elephant" Odds and Ends Sale, members are encouraged to come at 1 p.m. so they may have plenty of time to look over and hopefully purchase one or two of the many fine items that Stoneham's popular Helen Fazio will have on display. If you haven't already done so, you can bring an item to the November meeting and like Bartles and Jaymes, Helen will thank you for your support.

As for entertainment, Carol Johnson says that the Chapter will be highly honored at this meeting with the presence of Dr. Anne Wight Phillips, Vice President and Executive Director of the National Smoke, Fire, and Burn Institute. Dr. Phillips has received almost as many awards as Audie Murphy, the most decorated hero of World War II.

Some coming events to look forward to! A trip to Naples, Fla. in mid-November; a dinner to be held at the "Ship" on December 11; a New Year's Party to be held at Memorial Hall in Melrose; to Boston Garden for the Ice Follies in February; a trip to Danversport Yacht Club on March 17; a Fly and Cruise Trip to New Orleans and the Mississippi in May, and culminated by the Chapter's Annual Dinner in June.

The American Association of Retired Persons, Chapter 1124, is a regional area unit and has 350 members from ten towns, with Melrose as their focal point. Anyone, fifty years and over, and a member of National AARP, of which there is over 27 million members, is welcome to join the Melrose Chapter. Bessie McClellan, membership chairman, invite you to come as her guest and will answer any questions on joining Chapter 1124. However, if you are unable to make the November meeting, but would like information, please call Bessie at 245-0086.

One Final Note: Winter is rapidly approaching and if school is called off in Melrose on our meeting day, then our meeting will also be cancelled.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

When a woman puts on a dinner dress, it doesn't necessarily mean that she is going out to dinner. When she puts on a cocktail dress, she may or may not intend to go to a cocktail party — but — brother, when she puts on a "Wedding Dress," you can bet that she means business....I've been married for twenty-five years and I'm still in love with the same woman. If my wife finds out she'll kill me! My Aunt Nora's husband Angelo was a fisherman who drowned when the boat capsized in a storm on the Grand Banks, leaving his wife a beautiful house in Wilmington and a summer cottage at Hampton Beach. "Not bad," I told her, "for a man who couldn't read or write."

"Yeah," she exclaimed, "and he couldn't swim either!" It wasn't long afterwards that she attended socials and parties wearing a diamond ring that looked like the "Rock of Gibraltar." "Where in the world did you get the money to buy the Hope Diamond?" I asked. "Angelo left me $7,000 in cash, stipulating that I spend $2,000 for a casket and $5,000 for a "Stone," and I had to obey his wishes!"

There comes the day when almost every man looks in the mirror and discovers that his hairline is receding, or he needs bifocals or a hearing aid. Robert Burns, manager of the Woburn Elks, has a luxurious head of hair, and his eyesight is 20/20, but because he worked in a fish market years ago he is "Hard of Herring." At the hearing aid center, the genial manager showed Bob hearing aids costing from $1,000 down to $1.50. Bob's money flows like glue so of course he asked, "What does the cheap $1.50 one do?" "Nothing," replied the smiling salesman. "It's a button with a string tied to it. You stick the button in your ear and put the string in your shirt pocket. When a person sees it, he or she talks loud enough so that you can hear." Bobby Burns bought two of them, one for his dog.

Years ago Uncle John Shea of North Reading drove his car to New Hampshire. He met another motorist on a bridge too narrow for two cars to pass. "I never back up for an idiot," shouted Uncle John. "That's okay," said the other as he shifted into reverse, "I always do!" After I attended Louis O'Malley's wedding to Gail in Winchester, I took Lou aside and gave him a rabbit's foot and I said to him, "Always keep it in your pocket." "What for?" he asked. I smiled and said, "Every time your wife, Gail, sticks her hand in your pocket she'll think it's a mouse."

Woodchips is proud of many Middlesex East residents, some of whom are: Mr. John Rabbitt, dedicated Mayor of Woburn; Jimmy Geary, of Lynnfield, whose Irish tenor voice compared favorably with that of the great John McCormack; Capt. Edward Cronin, of Reading, commanding officer of the Mass. State Police at Logan Airport, gateway to New England; Jim Curley, insurance executive from Stoneham; Capt. Larz Neilson, Wilmington's historian and Merchant Marine Captain in WW II; Ed Sargent and Frank Tuttle, two great Yankees (I'm a Red Sox fan myself); Connie Johnson, Wakefield, genial owner of Honeycomb; Capt. Dan Gately, Woburn, in charge of the Charles River Lower Basin MDC Police; and Lt. Dave Walsh, also of Woburn. Lt. Walsh is in charge of the MDC Harbor Patrol; Fr. Martin Ryan S.J., Professor Emeritus of Boston College and now at St. Margaret's in Burlington. I told Fr. Ryan that Latin was all Greek to me. Pat Amundsen, whose husband was a great grandson of the South Pole explorer, who brought back the first penguin; and Sandy, whose smile is as beautiful as the flowers she sells at Pinewood Garden. More later, folks.

Woodchips' friends of many years, Tommy Castiello and his lovely wife Gina, will open a bakery in the East Gate Plaza in North Reading soon. Their specialty will be bread, pastry and birthday and anniversary cakes baked with a great deal of love. Tommy represents the third generation of Castiello's in the bakery business. He also is an instructor in cake decorating, so you will know that the cake you order will be an original masterpiece.

Woodchips congratulates Janice Houghton for being the first woman ever to be accepted for membership in the Stoneham Rotary Club. Arthur Fuller, oldest member in continuous service, extended a warm welcome to Janice. The president of this wonderful organization is Charles Houghton, Janice's handsome brother. I'm a member of the Elks, Lions and Moose. I'm afraid to leave my house during the "hunting season." Fred Neilson spent two hours looking when he came upon a sign that said, "Bear Right." He gave up the search when another sign

Stoneham's comedian and magician, Stu Wiley, was roasted at the Boston comedy club "Stitches." Stu is a comedy pro and I'm an amateur. (Some people think that I'm a magician because I'm always asked if I can disappear.) Happy birthday, Stu — you don't look half as old as some of your jokes.

My wife applied for a part-time job. The manager looked over her application and said, "You filled in April 12 for your birthday — what year?" Kathy smiled and said, "Every year, Buster, every year!" "Holy mackerel!" It seems that everyone I talk to is a golfer, and some of them are champions — like Rub Johnston, Arthur Callahan, Charles Driscoll, Michael Pinelli, Steve Tague and Bill Donnellan, and of course golf pro, Kyle Page, all of the Bear Hill Country Club. The rumor is that Pope John XXIII was a golfer — that's why he permitted church attendance on Saturdays, leaving Sunday mornings free to be on the Links. Neither snow, sleet, wind or rain could deter my friend Angus from playing golf. One day he was about to tee off on the ninth hole when he stopped, doffed his cap and stood at attention as a funeral procession was going by on a road adjacent to the golf course. Everyone at the club house remarked about it later because they knew that nothing ever had stopped Angus from playing. "Folks," Angus explained, "it was the least that I could have done today, after all, I was married to her for 39 years."

Pamela Swan, Captain Danielle Fuligni and Meghan Swan are not only champion spartan runners but they are beautiful too. My niece was proficient in the 100 meter dash, but somehow couldn't summon up the go-power to walk out with the trash. Other Stoneham runners are Sara Ward, the Daly Twins, Susan and Karen, and Kathy Scally, Jane Powers and Renee Ferraro. State Rep. Jim Miceli was present when Governor Michael Dukakis swore in Fire Lt. John Brown as a member of the State Fire Training Council. John is a resident of Tewksbury and a member of the Wilmington Fire Dept. Good luck, John. My grandmother called the fire department years ago and said, "I want to report a fire!" "Okay, lady," the dispatcher said, "calm down and tell me, how are we going to get there?" "Good grief," my grandmother shouted, "Don't you have those big red trucks anymore?" "Pass the word," the First Bank has relocated to 1866 Main Street in Tewksbury. Woodchips wishes President Richard Main continued success. I always carry a small pocket mirror when I have to cash a check in case a teller asks me to identify myself. I heard a teller tell a man last week who was wearing a cowboy hat and boots, "I'm sorry Tex, your wife came in yesterday and beat you to the draw. I hate seeing pictures of a stray dog in the paper because I always end up going down to the pound and adopting it. I have three of them and one of them puzzled me until the vet told me why it runs around and around in circles. The vet said, "That dog is a watch dog, and it's winding itself up."

Cherrystone's: here's the best of the brunch

By COLLEEN SMACZNEGO

The brunch business is booming on the North Shore. There are many places — and more all the time — to enjoy a leisurely Sunday breakfast lunch with the New York Times crossword puzzle or a good friend, maybe both.

Sunday brunch has become a therapeutic experience, an opportunity to slow down, relax and unwind, to treat yourself to a respite from the weekly rat race, and to enjoy the effects of good food and good company.

One of the most sumptuous of Sunday repasts is the Seafood Sunday Brunch at Cherrystone's Seafood Bar & Restaurant on Route 1 in Danvers.

Cherrystone's is located southbound on Route 1, next to the Deerakin Trading Post. The building has housed restaurants for several decades, beginning with Yokum's, a family eatery that still thrives in Portsmouth, N.H.

A Yuppierish upscale wood, glass and brass fish house that specializes in fresh seafood and caters to business types at lunch and the singles crowd after work, Cherrystone's has assembled one of the great, all-purpose Sunday brunches.

If $11.95 sounds like a lot for brunch, that's because you've never been to Cherrystone's on a Sunday afternoon. The choices are seemingly endless.

From lox, cream cheese and bagels to large unpeeled shrimp that are so fresh they appear set to jump off the cracked ice into your plate as you pass by.

From Seafood Newburg that's chock full shrimp, scallops and lobster, to just about the best finnan haddie to be found on the North Shore.

From Eggs Benedict made with large, fresh eggs, smoky ham and a great Hollandaise sauce, to rare roast beef.

From homemade muffins, large and moist, to a fantastic bread pudding spooned hot from an overflowing pan.

If Cherrystone's Seafood Sunday Brunch sounds great, that's only because it is. To the above sampling, add scrambled eggs, French toast, crepes with strawberry topping, homemade corned beef hash (delicious), bacon and sausage, home fries (slightly greasy), creamy chicken a la king, with the accent on chicken, baked scrod, wild rice pilaf, stuff-fed eggs, an assortment of cheeses and crackers, and a seafood pate that's out of this world.

Extensive service is not necessary with brunch, but the waitress was attentive and helpful. An explanation of the menu was immediately forthcoming and the coffee cups — regular and brewed decaf — were regularly filled.

(Cherrystone's is located at 80 Newbury St., Danvers, on the southbound lane of Route 1. Brunch is served every Sunday from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Reservations, especially for parties of four or more, are suggested. All major credit cards welcome. The dining and rest rooms are handicapped accessible.)

CANAL STILL ALIVE

The Middlesex Canal Association Fall Meeting will feature an antique "magic lantern" showing of glass lantern slides made early in this century.

This historical depiction of the old Middlesex Canal, which connected Lowell and Charlestown from 1803 to 1853, will be narrated by Louis Eno, the Association's first president, and Fred Lawson, a former Director of the Association.

The meeting will be Sunday, November 8 at 2 p.m. in the First Congregational Church, 18 Andover Road, Billerica. The public is invited to come hear about one of the area's most interesting historical structures, and learn about the association's efforts to preserve this part of our regional heritage.

The meeting will be followed by refreshments and an opportunity to socialize with other members and guests. For further information, contact David Fitch at 663-7848.

Tickets available at: Club Cafe, NYC Jukebox, Copley Fair, Bostix.

LET'S TWIST AGAIN!

The NYC Jukebox, 275 Tremont Street, Boston's hottest night club playing music from the 50's and 60's, complete with hot pink neon, '58 Chevys and plenty of room to dance, is hosting a real cool rock 'n roll party which promises to be one of the most popular AIDS benefits that has ever captured the imagination of Beantown.

Let's Twist Again! starring Chubby Checker live will bring back the era of poodle skirts, beehive hairdos, and Luckies roled up in T-shirt sleeves, on Sunday night, Nov. 22nd, beginning at 8 p.m.

Robert Stickney, owner of the Jukebox, says "The problem of the 50's seem so much easier to deal with in the face of AIDS in 1987. We want to bring back the fun of that era to benefit the AIDS Action Committee, which is working so hard to help our community in the midst of this crisis."

and antiquarian books, illuminated manuscripts, autographs, prints, maps, miniature books, fine bindings, exciting ephemeral — and more!

The fair will be held on November 20, 21, and 22 at the Park Plaza Castle (One Park Plaza at Arlington Street, Boston). The fair's convenient "shopping" hours are: Friday from 5 to 9 p.m.; Saturday from noon to 8 p.m.; and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Admission price for Friday is $7.50 (good for three days); Saturday and Sunday admission price is $4 each day. Gate proceeds benefit the Boston Public Library.

Come to the Boston International Antiquarian Book Fair, and be assured that the gift you buy will be a unique, memorable one, which will long be treasured by the recipient.

In the Greater Middlesex East area or in Eastern Massachusetts, NEW BUSINESS development, or ventures are our focus. Press releases and notices are welcome. Please send to William Pacino, care of this local newspaper. This week, we have a local grand opening, and a 65th anniversary, as well as shopping center trends, the key labor and management concerns and how to conduct a performance appraisal.

PUDGY PENGUIN

The Pudgy Penguin located at 461 Main St., Woburn, will host a Grand Opening on Sunday, November 8 from noon to 6 p.m. The Pudgy Penguin specializes in catering, offering hot and cold hors d'oeuvres, party sandwiches, pastries, homemade candies, cold cuts and cheese trays, an assortment of cakes, quiches, nice or naughty cakes, gift baskets, decorating center pieces and party favors. There is also a boutique and sweet shop.

The Pudgy Penguin's oyster quiche starts out as an award-winner. For further information, call 932-8992.

KEY LABOR

AIDS, drug abuse, and suits alleging wrongful discharge — together with fundamentals such as wages and benefits — are the leading labor and employment issues currently facing the Northeast's businesses and likely to dominate the attention of general managers and industrial relations executives during the coming decade, according to a survey released today.

The survey, conducted recently by Jackson, Lewis, Schnitzler and Krupman, one of the nation's leading labor and employment law firms representing management, asked more than 150 of New England's top labor relations and human resources executives to pinpoint their concerns as they attended the firm's two-day symposium on emerging labor and employment issues. The executives polled represented Fortune 500 companies as well as small and mid-sized organizations in the public and private sectors. The symposium took place at the Sheraton Tara in Framingham.

Presentations and panels during the Idea Exchange will include a "new retailers' showcase," highlighting several retailers currently expanding into the New England area. A discussion of critical issues facing New England shopping center professionals will focus on such topics as site availability, environmental considerations, new lease trends, landlord/tenant relations, new types of retailers, rent escalation and dealing with

PERFORMANCE APPRAISAL

The Associated Industries of Massachusetts will present a seminar entitled "Conducting a Performance Appraisal" on Thursday, November 19 at the Sheraton Tara Hotel in Framingham. The seminar begins at 8:30 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m.

Seminar participants should be getting more from their performance appraisal discussions. The performance appraisal can be a productive tool to help motivate and recognize employees and improve their performance. Participants will gain practical ideas for conducting the appraisal discussion, setting goals and following up as well as important steps for planning, preparing and helping employees improve specific performance problems.

This seminar is for executives, managers and supervisors who must complete the appraisal form and conduct an evaluative discussion with subordinates. The program offers specific techniques to make the appraisal a productive and useful management tool.

To register or obtain more information contact Anne Connolly of AIM at (617) 262-1180.

SHOPPING CENTER TRENDS

New England's 1,710 shopping centers generate $29.7 billion in retail sales each year, or about 45 percent of non-automotive retail sales in New England.

The developers who control those centers and the retailers leasing space there will get the some areas' anti-development attitudes.

ICSC indicates that the shopping center industry is a vital part of New England's economic well-being. Apart from their $29.7 billion in retail sales in the region in 1986, shopping centers generated $1.15 billion in state sales tax revenue. Over 362,000 people work in New England's shopping centers. Total retail area in the region's centers exceeds 195 million square feet. Over nine million adults visit New England shopping centers each month, or over 90 percent of the region's adult population, ICSC reports.

Registration fee for the New England Idea Exchange, which includes educational sessions, an opening reception, two meals and a "Deal Making" table (as space permits) is $75 in advance and $90 at the door. Information can be secured from the ICSC Information Center at (212) 421-8181, ext. 382.

65 YEARS CELEBRATED

In the early 1920's Angelo Tarantino moved with his wife and young sons from Naples, Italy to America. He brought with him old-world values, the artistry of a skilled woodworker and a dream. Now, three generations later, the company he founded with his son Florio in a small workshop in Boston's North End, has grown to become one of the foremost manufacturers of custom office furniture, with a retail operation offering New England's widest selection of dinette sets, lighting and home furnishings. Today, Tarantino's Paramount Manufacturing Company with its retail division Dinette World is celebrating its 65th successful year in business. The Paramount Manufacturing Company, Wilmington, began as a manufacturer of tabletops and store fixtures for restaurants. In the 1940's — 50's self-taught architect and designer Florio worked to expand his father's business to larger facilities in Roxbury and Lynn. In the 1970's, the company's continued growth spawned the retail division Dinette World and the entire operation moved to its present factory showroom in Wilmington. In recent years, Florio's sons Louis and Joe have joined him to manage the family manufacturing and retail operation.

Louis, Vice President of Manufacturing, heads The Paramount Manufacturing Company. The company built one famous booths in the original Pizzeria Regina and presently manufactures office interiors for major office suppliers including M. Brown and Business Interiors. Paramount Manufacturing is responsible for the design and construction of such projects as the Channel 7 News Desk and Digitals' new automatic office center.

Joe, Vice President of Retailing, operates Dinette World which features an impressive selection of National brand-name furniture and imports from the finest manufacturers. Kitchen sets, breakfast nooks, bars and stools, floor lamps, clocks, and lighting fixtures make up the vast display of contemporary and traditional home furnishings.
